RATIONALE:

Basing from the assessment needs of the extension program with the partner Municipality of Sadanga, it was found out that one of their needs is on journalism. Here in MPSPC, there is an existing pool of campus writers. The campus press and journalist educators can be tapped through pen and ink. They can extend their journalism expertise with the partner schools in the said municipality as enabling campus writers with skills in writing is of parallel importance.

The Journalism and School Publication Seminar and Workshop attempts then to equip Sadanga campus writers in their journalism skills that could be beneficial in the future development of the province and the country. The aim to learn the tenets of free and responsible journalism is important for an institution to remain free. The activity will indeed provide an effective medium in the development and promotion of campus journalism so as to imbibe an understanding of responsible expression and appreciation of the many contributions the school paper gives to school, community and the nation as well.

This is also an avenue for the student writers to be well- sculptured so as to become globally competitive and responsible campus journalists. It has to be borne in mind that without quality journalism, the quality of our society will diminish. Good campus journalism supports democracy and builds healthy communities.

Hence, the campus press should always serve as the avenue for neophytes in the field of reporting, bringing out their communication skills and giving bent to their talent on writing.

The Journalism and School Publication Seminar and Workshop is one of the activities of the College's campus writers from TALA, the official student publication of MPSPC, and the Teacher Education Department in partnership with the Research, Development and Extension Unit (RDE).

OBJECTIVES:

- a. To extend the journalism events attended by the College's campus writers;
- b. To help the SCS establish in publishing their school paper;
- c. To promote responsible campus journalism;
- d. To discuss to the participants the rudiments of campus journalism;
- e. To engage them in critical discussions of the role of campus journalism in the society;
- f. To train them in various categories of writing for the school paper – editorial writing, news writing, feature writing, sports writing, layouting and page design, photojournalism, editorial cartooning, and column writing/opinion writing; and,
- g. To create an atmosphere of competitiveness and excellence in undertaking journalism activities and towards achieving the goals of campus journalism.

METHODOLOGIES:

Based on the various extension seminar attended by campus writers, the best method that they are applying is the Face-to-face interaction to their clientele.

Each speaker is given an hour to lecture and 30 minutes of workshop. This will give them enough time to attain their set objectives.

The training was so interesting, but it could be best if the language could be at the level of the elementary. However they tried their best to be at the level. It is also tickling to the mind because the speaker mastered their objective and even tried to extend for some slow ones. However there is a need for the adviser & training for in the future.

Thank you very much.

We hope you can extend more time when we invite your assistance in the school level. We appreciate the opportunity given to us, however, the time wasn't enough for us who are starting from basic skills so we will be soliciting your help in the near future.
